1836 d of late William Egerton Hubbard Leonardale Horsham, Sussex Between 1844 and 1874 she took an active part in putting the Deacons movement on a firmer footing in London holding a series of fifty assistance meetings, which anticipated the 'drawing room meetings' of to day About 1870 was much struck by the position of impoverished self dependent ladies, and set herself to overcome their old fashioned prejudices and alike to im press them with the dignity of labour, and to show them the various ways in which they could obtain remunerative employment In first instance began active efforts to induce gentlewomen to accept positions of teachers in elementary schools, and brought about opening of Otter College, Chichester, as a training school for ladies as elementary teachers In 1874 wrote a series of articles in Labour News on employ ments for all classes of women These were reprinted in 1875 as a Handbook for Women's Work, which developed, in 1880, into The Englishwoman's Year Book, edited by L M H J, and in this form was issued annually by Miss Hubbard till 1898 In 1875 brought out the Woman's Gazette, which was continued as work and leisure to the end of 1883: many women's movements or societies of to day either originated in or were more or less promoted by these publications, among them being the United British Womens Emigration Association, the Midwives Institute and the National Union of Women Workers. Since break down of health in 1884 has resided principally on the Continent.

Sailor, gold-miner, tramp, writer, socialist, lecturer, journalist, etc. In his search for adventures among the seum marine population of San Francisco Bay he soon lost his ideal romance and replaced it with the real romance of things; he became, in turn, a salmon fisher, an oyster pirate, a schooner sailor, a fish patrolman, a longshoreman, and general bay-lining adventurer, when he was seventeen he shipped before the mast as able seaman; went to Japan and seal-hunting on the Russian side of Bering Sea, among other things, and served at divers times in various capacities, he became possessed of an interest in sociology and economics; swayed partly by this, and partly by the fascination of the enterprise, he tramped over the United States and Canada, many thousands of miles, and having more than one jail experience because he possessed no fixed place of abode, and no visible means of support; later on he repeated his vagabond career in the East End of London; he went over Chilkoot Pass with the first of the Klondike rush of 1897. Publications: The Son of the Wolf, 1900; The God of His Fathers; A Daughter of the Snows; The
